1790-1859 was the first professor of jurisprudence at the University of London which is now University College. His classic The Province of Jurisprudence Determined was derived from his course lectures. Austin took great pride in his ability to clearly delineate the study of law. Austin took a surgical approach and created a stripped-down view of material central to the study of law. While this approach overlooks the ambiguity inherent in interpretations of law, it nevertheless stands as a landmark work and provides an excellent starting point for any deeper inquiry into the subject of jurisprudence.

How to Do Things with Words John Langshaw Austin, 1975. This work sets out Austin's conclusions in the field to which he directed his main efforts for at least the last ten years of his life. Starting from an exhaustive examination of his already well-known distinction between performative utterances and statements, Austin here finally abandons that distinction, replacing it with a more general theory of illocutionary forces of utterances which has important bearings on a wide variety of philosophical problems.
